THE CONFERENCE OF A BUREAU.

ON a breakfast-table, a woman was sitting with her husband, who was reading a paper.

"What are you reading?" she asked.

"A long article on the duties of a bureau," he replied.

"What is a bureau?" she asked.

"It is a place where things are kept," he said.

"What things?" she asked.

"Anything that is not wanted at the moment," he said.

"What is the use of a bureau?" she asked.

"To keep things in until they are wanted," he said.

"What is the use of a bureau?" she asked.

"To keep things in until they are wanted," he said.

PAUL'S GHOST.

IT WAS NOT IN THE LEAST of a man's mind to go to the office on Monday morning.

"What is the matter?" he asked.

"I am not sure," he replied.

"What is the matter?" he asked.

"I am not sure," he replied.

"What is the matter?" he asked.

TO BE ENLARGED
AND IMPROVED.
A DUN.
EMPHATICALLY!

We are making arrangements for the purchase of a New York Ledger Press and New York for the purpose of enlarging and improving the Transcript. We would like to ask to increase our circulation from sometime next month. To this end, we will accept all old and new subscribers to OMEG and NEW YORK DAILY DOWN their subscriptions. We have been sending this paper to a great many people who have not paid for one year, two, three, and even four years. To Mr. Pleasant, we send P.O. and P.P. papers, and we have also received money enough from that locality to pay for the blank paper which they are printed. The same state of affairs apply with equal justice to our subscribers at Marion and Waynesville. But the highest class that take the Transcript live here in Clifton. They take the paper from the desk with perfect impunity, and then list in groceries and other retail stores, obtaining and its publishers, on account of size or something else, they do not expect any more of it. We are distinctly understood that we are abundantly able to issue the paper, and every week in good style as we have done for several months past, and give it away, but we would like to see for the first time, wealthy (and sometimes poor) men to stand our capital and labor, and we hereby give particular notice that on every Monday, the 25th day of March, A. D. 1861, we won't give away any more paper, but money is comparatively plenty in the country, and we must and will have some of it. Come in for your paper, Dilliquent, or don't take it from the office.

An X marked on your paper denotes that you are not a subscriber, and that unless you pay, you'll be sent for.

Those who are indebted to us for subscription, job work, advertising matter, make some arrangements to pay us. We are not our money one way or another.

If you and we will do your work—if you don't, we want this a plain and simple proposition—only understood.

We hope we have spoken to the point, and in a manner that cannot possibly be misunderstood by ANYBODY who can read plain English. We have endeavored to state what we mean, and we will say in the plainest and simplest manner, and we repeat, that we hope none of our readers (if patrons can possibly be understood)

HOISE BILLS!

We are prepared with entire new type, to print House and Jack bills, in good style and at very low rates.

But to our friends:—In a white article upon referring to the lead pen the Caroline's Journal says:

"We are prepared with entire new type, to print House and Jack bills, in good style and at very low rates."

IN COLTRIN, EDITOR.
PRESIDENT LINCOLN
Delivered at Washington City, March 10, 1861.

Right Citizens of the United States:—To coincide with a meeting and to the Convention, I have the honor to address you this morning, and to take up the subject of the National Convention of the United States to be held at the expiration of the term of the President of the United States.

It is not to discuss those matters of the Convention, but to take up the subject of the National Convention of the United States to be held at the expiration of the term of the President of the United States. I have the honor to address you this morning, and to take up the subject of the National Convention of the United States to be held at the expiration of the term of the President of the United States.

THE NATIONAL

We present the inaugural Message of Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States, in his own words. At the same time, we can only say that it meets the highest expectations of the country, both as to its character and its content, and that its effect on the public mind cannot be overestimated.

THE WADDOY

What the address is entirely that of the "Forest Old" and the "Wadwoy" is a very interesting and important document, which has determined to preserve the highest quality of the country, both as to its character and its content, and that its effect on the public mind cannot be overestimated.
